

BUILD TO RENT/MULTIFAMILY

OVERVIEW

The global multifamily and build to rent market continues to grow: developers in the US plan to deliver the highest growth in new supply since the late 1980s. And, in Europe, the asset class now accounts for 14% of total real estate investment annually, with investment in the sector rising 143% between 2010 and 2016.

Multifamily and build to rent projects can provide strong, secure and long-term financial return if investors and developers are able to anticipate and manage legal risks along the way. To build an asset with investment longevity and the right gross-to-net ratios, you need lawyers with a comprehensive understanding of both the challenges and opportunities of this asset class, and who can provide the sophisticated, hands-on advice you need to make smart decisions that reflect your business goals.

Working with BCLP, you will benefit from the insight and advice of our internationally ranked real estate team. We act for clients working across the entire multifamily and build to rent sector – from government, to banks, investors, developers and operators. Our market connectivity working with main industry bodies allows us to anticipate challenges at an early stage, navigate potential pitfalls and, ultimately, help make your project a success

At the present time, in the UK alone, we are currently advising on a pipeline of build to rent transactions comprising significant acquisitions, forward funding and development, worth in the region of £2 billion and involving thousands of new homes across the UK. Some of these transactions are the most high-profile UK deals in the sector to date. In addition we have advised other well-known transactions such as those listed below.

These are two of the most significant institutional build to rent investments in Manchester and Birmingham to date.

THE LONDON OLYMPIC LEGACY

Location: UK, London

We advised the London Legacy Development Corporation on the procurement process behind their plan to deliver 1,500 homes in the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park. This included setting up its joint development with Balfour Beatty and Places for People and helping the corporation retain an ongoing interest in the proposed build to rent element of the project.

FINANCING FOR WATERFRONT DEVELOPMENT IN NEW YORK

Advised on the financing of a development project covering two full city blocks on the Williamsburg, New York waterfront, to contain over 1,350 rental and condominium apartments, commercial space, a public waterfront esplanade and recreational piers.
